dent's Award is given annually to a member for outstanding service to the organization. The Community award is given to a resident, in this case to Officer Tammany for his work with school safety patrols and various public safety programs. Both men were honored at the Andover Chamber's annual dinner June 8.

An Editorial

The Facts Of Life

We have said it before and we say it again: unless the town is willing, immediately, to supply additional downtown parking space south of Chestnut Street, it would be sheer folly to locate a new town office building on some portion of Andover's only municipal parking lot.

It makes no difference whether advocates of such a move talk about situating a Colonial-style town "hall" up front on the lot where it can contribute to the town image or down back where it will least interfere with parking. It is a solution that would compound one problem to solve another.

Perpetual reminders that the Shaw property was acquired in the first place because it seemed an ideal spot for a town hall are equally immaterial. There wasn't any Olde Andover Village shopping center in those days - nor any business college etc. etc.

Automobiles are a fact of life, however distasteful a reality this may be for those who deplore "creeping asphaltism." Andover is well populated right now by two and three-car families and if it continues to attract college-bred, middle and upper income residents at the rates predicted, parking is certain to rival Roger's Brook as a topic for long-term discussion. It has an impressive record already.

It is repetitive, but apparently necessary to state afresh that the approach we take to solving today's building and parking problems can affect the whole character of this community. One piece of current news serves to dramatize

Boosters' Honoring Championship Team

The Andover Boosters' Club, with the cooperation of the Board of Selectmen, is sponsoring a recognition dinner tonight for the Championship Andover High School Track Team.

The 72 members of the team will be guests of the club at Indian Ridge Country Club at 7 p.m. The undefeated team collected the following titles during the 1966 season: Champs, North Shore Indoor League, Massachusetts Class C Indoor, Little Three, Merrimack Valley Dual Meet League, Merrimack Valley Conference Meet Andover Invitational Meet, St. John's Relays, Massachusetts Class C Outdoor and Massachusetts State Championship, all classes.

On June 11 Michael Corry won the New England High School High Jump Championship in a meet at Keene, N.H.

Chamber Head Opposes Cut Into Parking Area

The Andover Chamber of Commerce has not yet registered its official opposition to the municipal parking lot as a town hall site, but its newly elected president has sounded the battle cry.

In his installation address last week, Eugene A. Bernardin Jr. referred to the former Shaw property as the "worst possible available location" and asked Chamber members to back him up with letters of protest.

Bernardin was startled to learn that the parking lot was suddenly gaining in favor as a town hall site. He referred to the fact that on June 6 Selectman Sidney P. White threw his support to the Main Street location in a move that surprised even Selectman Robert A. Watters, long an advocate of building to the rear of the large parking area.

This week Bernardin said that his opposition to use of the lot is based on the present set of circumstances. He pointed out that the Chamber backed an earlier move to acquire the so-called Killorin property as an addition to the site which would have compensated for the loss of public parking area, and said that reconsideration of this possibility could alter the picture. He added that the site could not, however, be considered

Two Named To Fin Com

Two new members have been appointed to the Andover Finance Committee and five reappointed by Moderator Arthur Williams.

Named for new terms are Charles M. Bowman, 87 Chestnut St. and David M. Thompson, 65 Sunset Rock Rd. Bowman is a member of the Board of Review for the Massachusetts Division of Employment Security and Thompson is treasurer of Merrimack Inc., a Lawrence writing papers manufacturer. Thompson has been a member of the town's Industrial Development Committee and in 1956 he was a candidate to fill the vacancy on the Board of Public Works created by the resignation of Sidney P. White.

Continuing on the "watchdog" committee will be Robert M. Henderson, 8 Dunbarton St., president of Andover Savings Bank and the current Fin Com chairman; Thomas S. Marjerison Jr., 87 Burnham Rd.; Edward A. Romeo, 28 Summer St.; Allen M. Flye, 89 Lowell St.; and J. Everett Collins, 35 Summer St.

Williams, who is also a representative in the State Legislature, has been the subject of recent criticism, particularly from Chairman William Stewart of the Board of Selectmen, because these appointments have been delayed since March. The finance committee is supposed to be named at the annual Town Meeting.

Sgt. Poremba Recipient Of Bronze Star

It was reported here Wednesday that Sgt. Joseph Poremba of Andover has been awarded the Bronze Star in ceremonies held at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D.C.

The sergeant was wounded by a grenade blast in Vietnam last November as he led a group of men to safety. He has been under treatment for eye injuries since that time.

A 20-year man, Sgt. Poremba was serving with the 1st Cavalry Division when wounded. He has seen service also in Korea, Europe and Japan.

The sergeant has two children living at 44 Red Spring Rd. with his mother, Mrs. Marie Mitchell and a sister.

F. H. Foster has gone to Water to further pursue studies per-

During the past week five young men have appeared before Judge Pier for riding bicycles on the sidewalk and they all paid fines.
Shades of all that is venerated in the town! No reception at Punc-hard in the evening! We may almost expect to see the shading of trees removed as the next thing. But seriously, the small boy adding into young manhood has reason to feel much aggrieved at the removal of the old and ancient custom. . .

10 Years Ago - June, 1916

Monday evening in Town Hall nearly 200 voters attended the special town meeting, called chiefly to give relief to the residents of Abbott and Marland Village from the excessive sewer assessments levied by the Board of Public Works. . . The big expense of putting the sewer in from Phillips street to Abbott centre made this assessment three times as much as in other sections of the town. It had been voted that residents pay 5 percent of the cost.

The Chamber is expected to make an official stand on the ball question prior to when the selectmen and members of a municipal committee are to make a decision on the final proposed to be the final about the office building. By then the board will have two weeks to evaluate information collected by Manager Bowen for a "true" cost of sites presently under consideration: the Lally - Barnard - Barnard (favored planning board); the present block; the Musgrove block; the Shaw or parking lot project. On the basis of this debate, the Lally acreage, the cost of the possibility, it would "cost" the town, overall, in making his comparative analysis, Manager Bowen included estimates for land acquisition, building demolition, development along with the replacement value of the space loss that would be involved. The dollar value of the old-town parking space, figured at $2,000, considerable estimate in view of recent downtown real transfers.

On the tally sheet, Bowen estimated that it would cost $200,000 to acquire the Musgrove block, the Essex Street theater project has proposed as a parking annex. The price for the Barnard land was estimated at $50,000. The town has a total of $32,500 for the Shorten portion of the present town block.

The analysis ranks the sites as follows: Lally-Barnard, with a $23,000 credit; Musgrove, with a $180,000 credit; present town block, with a $2,500 credit and the municipal parking lot with a $2,000 debit.

In his Chamber of Commerce address, Eugene Bernardin called attention to the fact that the Chamber's board is not convinced new office building needs are the center of town, and he suggested the Shawshen Road school acreage as a possible site. He commented also on Manager Bowen's proposal for development of the Musgrove block.

"In the past," said Bernardin, "the town has been doing mosquito swatting, just so to immediate emergency when presented itself. It would be a good idea for the Chamber to build at this time work together an integrated plan to solve building problems. But the town hall on the way to town hall on the way (parking lot)."

Both these needs are met by brand-name pharmaceuticals when you fill your prescriptions. Backed by the reputation of reliable manufacturers, these drugs may not be the "cheapest" — but, in terms of the quality they fulfill, such brand-name preparations are truly "inexpensive." ideal in any event because its use would further complicate an already bothersome traffic situation.

The Chamber is expected to take an official stand on the town hall question prior to Tuesday when the selectmen and other members of a municipal study committee are to make what is supposed to be the final decision about the office building location.

By then the board will have had two weeks to evaluate information collected by Manager Richard Bowen for a "true" cost analysis of sites presently under consideration: the Lally - Barnard land off Elm Square (favored by the planning board); the present town hall block; the Musgrove block and the Shaw or parking lot property. On the basis of this debit-credit tallying, the Lally acreage is the choicest of the possibilities because it would "cost" the town least, overall. In making his comparative analysis, Manager Bowen included estimates for land acquisition, building demolition and the development along with figures for the replacement value of any parking space loss that would be involved. The dollar value of a half-town parking space was figured at $2,000, considered a conservative estimate in view of recent downtown real estate transfers.

On the tally sheet, Bowen estimated that it would cost $200,000 to acquire the Musgrove block plus the Essex Street theater property. He has proposed as a parking area annex. The price for the Barnard-Lally land was estimated at $50,000. The town has already paid $32,500 for the Shorten Garage portion of the present town hall block.

The analysis ranks the sites as follows: Lally-Barnard, with a $193,000 credit; Musgrove, with a $180,000 credit; present town hall block, with a $2,500 credit; and the municipal parking lot, with a $2,000 debit.

In his Chamber of Commerce address, Eugene Bernardin called attention to the fact that the chamber's board is not convinced the new office building needs to be in the center of town, and he suggested the Shawsheen Road high school acreage as a possible location. He commented also on Manager Bowen's proposals for development of the Musgrove block.

"In the past," said Bernardin, "the town has been doing a lot of mosquito swatting, just solving immediate emergency when it presented itself. It would seem that the town and the Chamber should at this time work together in an integrated plan to solve building problems. But let's compound them by putting the town hall on the worst possible location available (the parking lot)."

Facts Of Life

this point.

The planning board has warned against permitting a situation that would encourage the spotting of patches of black asphalt throughout the business section, and stumped for convenient placement of spacious municipal lots. If the townspeople had been sufficiently impressed by this message, we might have been spared the news that the Andover Savings Bank plans destruction of a landmark house to the rear of its Main Street office as a solution to its own parking problems. We can expect more of this sort of thing should officials move to locate a town office building, or a fire station or anything else in the business center without full regard for long-range implications.

If the powers that be are absolutely convinced it is important to keep municipal buildings downtown as a stimulant to business activity (even though our merchants are not persuaded to this point of view!), they must select sites for these edifices that look to the time when the business district will be expanded to provide for the needs of 30,000 to 50,000 people. What the town does should encourage orderly and aesthetically appealing advances along the way.

Andover can grow and at the same time retain its small town appeal. But it cannot do so unless the decision makers realize that the time has come when old and new MUST sit in juxtaposition and it can be arranged for them to do so inoffensively if all planning for the future begins with the acceptance of this premise.

Addendum

It is not absolutely necessary for parking lots to be an abomination, though it is certainly so that most of them are.

Strips of green, trees and decorative fences or walls can all be used to detract from the utilitarian features of a parking area. Accouterments of this sort make parking lots more appealing and can do a great deal to convince people that they need not always park within a few feet of each and every business in town.

Conservationists, as a matter of fact, may come to regard parking lots as a legitimate and useful means of preserving open space in communities where constriction of the business district invites wall to wall construction.

Honor Essays

"They"

by Kathleen Muller

We are the "hip generation." We inhabit a world deftly described with capitalized words: College Boards, Levis, the Peace Corps, Colt .45, the Selective Service. Ours is an inventive, pensive world wherein we deal calmly (for we must) with the bomb and pop art. History will probably comment upon us with words like affluent, liberal, liberated, brutal, productive, aware, imaginative.

However, despite all our intelligence and imagination, we have been unable to find an adequate substitute for what is simultaneously the vaguest and yet most meaningful word in our vocabulary. We have attempted to find a suitable synonym—adults, parents, the older generation—but we always return to the impersonal pronoun, THEY.

We have often been criticized for our frequent use of this "They"; those to whom it applies consider it to be cold and arrogant. To us, though, its meaning is radically different from arrogance or disrespect. "They" are the people who buy our clothes, our hamburgers, our hairdriers, and our Bob Dylan albums. From them comes our affluence.

Furnishing material goods, however, is but a small part of their importance in our lives. What really matters is that they provide. In our homes and schools, they teach us invaluable lessons which help us to grow in maturity and in knowledge. They provide us with an awareness of a God who shows us the way when we are lost or confused. On the athletic fields and on the battlefields, they serve us and strive to make this world a happier, more peaceful place. In government, they legislate programs which improve our health, our education, and our entire future.

They give us inspiration, the nucleus from which our greatest achievements grow. The ideals which guide us when the harshness of today nearly masks the joyful discoveries of tomorrow—these ideals are patterned after theirs. When our brave dreams are shattered, they are our comforters. They are the source of love, of courage, and of hope. It is true, though, that they sometimes leave us feeling exasperated and misunderstood; the years between us and them are an obstacle in the way of communication. But the passage of time will span that gap. As Mark Twain once said, "When I was a boy of fourteen, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be twenty-one, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years."

We are midway between those ages, fourteen and twenty-one, and our attitude is changing as we begin to understand ourselves and others. "They"—our parents, teachers, and the entire generation ahead of us—they seem much wiser and more wonderful to us now. For this, we are grateful.

Can Science Save Us?

by Sharon Briggs

If someone today were to tell us that we should live for the moment, for tomorrow the bomb might get us, we would probably stare at him queerly and say, "What a pessimist!" or perhaps, "Now there goes a realist!" Is he a pessimist or a realist? Perhaps a glance into both the past and the present will help us decide whether his fears justify his indifference to the future.

There was an awesome silence in a pint-sized laboratory at Columbia University in January, 1940, when John Dunning and his associates witnessed the first explosion of uranium-235. Could they have suspected then what the most far-reaching results of their experiments would be? Could they have realized that the atomic bomb (alias "A" bomb) and the hydrogen bomb, both enormously destructive weapons, would be the results of research by these scientists, dedicated to the progress of mankind?

But the results didn't stop with the mass destruction in World War II. Today, the fear of atomic war is coupled with a fear of radioactive fallout. In response to a hue and cry raised recently against the uncontrolled testing of atomic weapons in the air, the market was flooded with metal fallout shelters guaranteed to stop every dirty gamma ray and protect the baby's precious hair allotment.

What about the arms race? Would we be paying so many taxes and sending our young men overseas if we did not have to worry about Russia's increasing her nuclear arsenal? Why do we not blame science?

In fairness to those of us who are scientists, we must weigh the pro's against the con's, the good results against the bad. Equal justice must be given to the poor uranium atom, which in itself is not responsible, for the good or the bad. Man himself is the "trigger puller." He decides how the energy unchained from the atom is to be harnessed—in bombs or in cancer research.

A great deal of research has been and is now being carried on to find peacetime uses for atomic energy. If we listen to the radio or read the newspaper, we will always find some references to devices previously powered by electricity, but now driven by atomic energy—atomic submarines, atomic turbines and generators, and atomic ovens. Industry uses radiation to test the purity of processes materials.

The most remarkable effects of radiation are revealed through its uses in medicine. Radioactive isotopes trace blood circulation and reveal the paths of hormones to the tissues. A highly publicized use of radiation is that used in cancer treatment. Until surgical techniques are perfected and an anti-cancer drug is found, radiation will remain one of the best treatments for cancer. Why do we not praise science for this?

Man, an imperfect animal, is thus faced with a decision. Can he let his search for truth take him where it will? Can he let it lead him to another mass destruction weapon similar to the atomic bomb? But can he curb this search for truth so much that he will stop the wheels of progress?

As a scientist, I will have to make a decision. When I do, I will recall these famous lines:

"I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth
I know not where."

Man cannot afford unguided arrows. He must know where his knowledge is going to take him if he is going to progress at all.

To Strive, To Seek, To Find

by Susan Dímlich

Robert Frost once said that the road one chooses to take in life can make all the difference later on. Will we take the easy way, the well-traveled road, or will we be courageous and adventurous in striking out on our own? Now is the time for our decision.

If we examine the annals of history, we shall see that many men who have achieved greatness had to take the new, unexplored road before they could discover or accomplish anything.

Copernicus had the boldness to question the established theory of the sun's rotation around the earth. By challenging a widely accepted belief and setting himself up to ridicule, he discovered the now universally held truth that the earth revolves around the sun.

Columbus, too, questioned a common belief—that the earth was flat. With self-confidence he set out to prove otherwise.

Although Senator Robert Taft knew that it would be political suicide, he courageously doubted the legality of the Nuremberg trials and, in doing so, lost any chance he had had to the presidency.

We do not have to look to history to find men who have taken a unique road in life. Recently there was in Life magazine a picture taken in 1940 of a Yale fraternity. In that picture it is hard to tell one student from another. It would probably be safe to say that at this time in their lives they were much alike in their ideas and ambitions. Yet the individuality of their success is striking. Out of that class came Supreme Court justices, famous senators, a governor, a secretary of the Army, and many others who have achieved distinction.

Our class has traveled on a common road to this point in our lives. We, too, have had similar ideas and ambitions. Now, in making that decision between the well-traveled road and the lonelier one, we shall diverge.

Those who set out on the unique road towards their own understanding of life will experience the excitement and satisfaction of discovering for themselves. They may not become revolutionizers of thought or famous men, but their existence will have a real meaning to them, and they will have a strong purpose for living.

The alternative is the well-traveled road, the one that today, unfortunately, many a man is only too happy to follow. In doing so, he becomes trapped in a humdrum existence and obedience to conformity. He becomes bored with himself—only the weather and the latest baseball scores are within his scope of thought. Life is laid out for this type of person; he accepts as right the first philosophy, the first creed, the first opinion on anything that he encounters. To him, learning becomes not a search for new understanding but instead an acceptance of dogma. Such an existence is evidently satisfactory for some. Will it be for us?

If we take the untrodden road, we will realize that no one man is the ultimate authority. After examining a book, we may question the truth of the author. Sitting in a classroom, we may challenge the words of the teacher. If we, like the contemporaries of Copernicus, are content with accepting the collected knowledge of others, where will our civilization be two hundred years from now?

If we recognize that to search is to exist, life will become for us an adventure, each day offering new experiences and discoveries. We will not be resigned to boredom. We will retain our identity in a stereotyping society. We will get out of bed in the morning, not afraid to face the day, but impatient and grateful for the opportunities that it offers.

As we set out today, let us resolve to take the untrodden path towards truth in accepting the advice of Alfred Lord Tennyson in the poem "Ulysses": "To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

One World

by Virginia Berg

It has often been said that all people are the same. This is not entirely true, for each ethnic group has characteristics which distinguish it from all others. But members of the world's population do seem to have in common the same basic feelings and values, tempered by individual cultures.

It is this continuous bond which girds the earth and provides a foundation for hopes of future peace.

Three years ago my family received orders to transfer to London, England. For a long time we had dreamed of living overseas, so we looked forward to a great adventure. Our expectations were fully realized; not only did we have a chance to explore England, but we were also able to travel on the Continent and stay with relatives in Sweden. Instead of staying at hotels, as do most tourists, we spent the nights in campgrounds. In this manner we met and became friends with the same type of people with whom we would normally associate.

Despite occasional disputes, there are so many incidents of cooperation between peoples of diverse backgrounds that the dreams of international amity do not seem overoptimistic. There is a special type of harmony between an American and a Japanese who silently exchange camera settings in front of the statue of the Little Mermaid in Copenhagen Harbor.

Language is not always necessary for communication; everyone understands a smile. Once in Germany a local girl and I discovered we were the only teenagers in the camp, and we became friends without exchanging a word. By the end of the day we were conversing in a garbled mixture of German, English, and sign language. Although her father was still suffering with injuries from the second World War, neither she nor her family exhibited any animosity toward me as a person or as an American. Just the sight of the two of us together brought tears to the eyes of an old man. In his lifetime he had seen our two countries at war twice, but Angelika and I were not influenced by these conflicts. Is there any reason why this type of unity cannot exist on an international level?

Such happenings are by no means isolated. An excited discussion of world politics with friends in a Swedish park can be contrasted with a stroll through the misty twilight forest with a Danish family followed by our drinking tea and laughing as we groped for the pronunciation of strange sounds. Norwegian teenagers serenaded my grandmother with "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" while we ate a lunch of Swedish varm korv hot dogs.

It is significant that many of these incidents involve teenagers. Because they have not personally experienced a major war, the young people of today can look at the world without the prejudice bitter experiences create. The outlook must not be in the naive mood of the twenties, but must be one of optimism and faith tempered by realism.

Many efforts are currently being made to promote international harmony. The American Field Service represents one of the most successful. Many students here remember last winter's AFS party, when students from over a dozen different nations crowded together on toboggans and careened down the slope to a safe but snowy stop despite Luis' mad steering. The United States government has tried to help other nations solve their problems through the Peace Corps; the success of this project can be seen from the great number of requests for more volunteers.

Not all projects, however, must involve numerous countries or large organizations. Men like Albert Schweitzer and Dr. Tom Dooley waged one-man crusades against misunderstanding and discrimination. In our own hearts and minds, we, too, must carry on this war.

In the words of Adlai Stevenson, a great statesman and a world citizen, "To attain peace we must have within ourselves an affirmative vision of hope which we can share with the rest of mankind."

• The selectmen have asked Police Chief David Nicoll to investigate the complaint of Edmund J. Gaudet and 12 other residents in the Boston and County Road area that seven or eight dogs kept at a location near the intersection of these roads keep neighbors awake at night with their barking. Gaudet told the board the dog owners had been asked by the police previously to keep their dogs in after 10 p.m. but that the warning "didn't seem to do much good."

• The town is to inquire of the state if it plans to continue the resurfacing of Route 28 from North Reading into Andover. R. Wayne Long, 291 S. Main St., wrote the selectmen last week complaining about the condition of this state highway between Phillips Academy and the Route 125 bypass.

Corps Center For Migrants

The Commonwealth Service Corps will establish a center at Phillips Academy about June 20 from which it will operate programs for migratory workers employed on Andover farms for the summer.

Corps representatives report that some 125 Puerto Ricans will be coming into the area as workers for 15 local farms.

Through the Service Corps center these migrants will have access to classes in English, health education and citizenship (the rights and responsibilities.) The farm workers, many of whom have never been away from their rural hometowns before, will be given information about such things as local shopping, banking services etc.

Students and others interested in doing volunteer work to assist the corps should contact Daniel J. Worcester, 22 Anthony Rd., North Reading.

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

Parents and friends of Central School are invited to attend the final assembly tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Principal Catherine M. Barrett will award gifts to a number of members of the sixth grade class.

SLATED TO FALL - the Nathaniel Swift House which sits on Chestnut Street to the rear of the Andover Savings Bank. Missing are the fence and the chimney, neither of which is considered to have been part of the original structure. The cupola, shown in this view, and the porch extension which is now part of the house also post-date the original. The major portion of the porch is, however, authentic and typical of the period when piazza sitting first came into vogue.

Bank To Use Landmark Site

A minor stir is being created by release of the news that the Andover Savings Bank intends to create a small parking lot for customers to the rear of its Main Street office, utilizing the site now occupied by the old Nathaniel Swift house.

President Robert Henderson confirmed the bank's intentions last week and said that a deposit has been made on the property. Eugene A. Bernardin Jr., whose insurance and real estate business fills a major portion of the historic house, reports his firm will move into the new office building at 13 Central Street next month.

Henderson said he has had one inquiry from a man interested in moving the residence to another site, but that no definite proposal has been made.

The Swift house was built about 1830 and stood originally on the corner lot of Main and Chestnut Streets where the savings bank has been located since 1924. Nathaniel Swift (1778-1840) was a physician and the second postmaster in Andover's history. He was a nephew of Jonathan Swift, the man who built the Colonial home now occupied by W. R. Hill at the corner of Brooke and Central Streets.

Nathaniel's son, Nathaniel, lived in his father's house during his lifetime, 1805-1878. He was president of the Andover Savings Bank for 18 years and a trustee for 36.

Ironically, both he and his son George are credited in old newspaper notices with having a great deal to do with the beautification of Andover. For one thing, the men planted and encouraged the planting of numerous trees.

Ingenious American Hauls Bulky Gift In London Tube

The British got a chuckle earlier this month from a London Daily Mirror story headlining the adventures of an Andover Air Force jet mechanic bent on delivering a bulky gift to his 17-year-old English fiancée - via the subway. Said the Mirror: "Dan Armstrong turned up at the Tube station with a bumper-sized piece of luggage. . .

"A second-hand fridge, weighing nearly two hundredweight. 'One and a half to Victoria please,' he asked the booking office clerk at Liverpool street.

"And the clerk duly issued him a half-price ticket because the fridge was under fourteen years old."

Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Armstrong, 40 Linwood Rd., shipped the refrigerator part of the across London way to its destination in Wandsworth Common by rail. But he abandoned "haulage" to keep the marathon trip within his budget.

The 20-year-old service man and five of his friends "man-handled" the fridge down the escalator into the subway, persuaded railwaymen to put it on the guards' van for Wandsworth station to his fiancée's home - not before staging a celebratory party on the Common.

A summer hockey school for 14 to 17 year old boys will be held for the sixth time this year, August 15-26, at the North Shore Sports Center, Lynn, Mass.

Walter Brinn's Summer Hockey School, first of its kind in the Eastern Massachusetts area will enroll a maximum of 30 boys this summer. The young players will receive on-ice instruction from experienced coaches for nearly two hours daily, Monday through Friday. Classroom lectures and demonstrations will round out the hockey curriculum.

Walter Brinn, director of physical education in the Waltham (Mass.) public schools, has coached the Waltham High School pucksters for the past 34 seasons. He established the summer hockey school in 1961, and remains as its director.

MRS. CHARLES WETMORE KELLOGG II

Kellogg - Shaw

Miss Gillian Barr Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Shaw of Concord, was married June 11 to Charles W. Kellogg II, son of Mrs. Waters Kellogg, 59

Phillips St., and the late Mr. Kellogg.

Rev. Nigel Andrews performed the ceremony in Trinity Church, Concord, and a reception followed at the bride's home.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess style taffeta gown with a train and lace bodice and an ancestral mantle of Brussels lace, the veil worn by her great-grandmother. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, phalaenopsis and ivy.

Miss Susan Shaw, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor. Her yellow taffeta gown was covered with matching chiffon and a band of yellow flowers clinging the waist and sleeves.

School Minister Retires After 36 Years On Campus

Rev. A. Graham Baldwin of Phillips Academy retired last weekend after 36 years of service to the preparatory school, thirty-two of them as school minister and chairman of the religion department. In addition to his responsibilities at PA, Mr. Baldwin has served on the Board of the Greater Lawrence Guidance Center and the National Council of Religion and the Independent Schools. He is a trustee of Walnut Hill School.

The minister and his wife will continue to live in Andover. Next fall he will teach religion two days a week at Gov. Dummer Academy and devote time to writing and community projects as well. Mrs. Baldwin, who is employed by the State Department of mental health, will continue as a social worker at the Greater Lawrence Guidance Center.

At the last PA chapel for the year, Headmaster John M. Kemper used these words to describe Mr. Baldwin's contribution to the academy and its students:

"I've never known a boy who questioned the genuineness of his (Rev. Baldwin's) interest in any and every boy."

It has been his conviction that every boy should understand religion and worship. That on one hand this understanding should

REV. A. GRAHAM BALDWIN strengthen his commitment to his own beliefs; that on the other hand if upon leaving PA he chose to abandon religion in any form, his decision would be an informed one.

Newest Floor Covering

If you are building a new home, remodeling, or redecorating a room in your home, you know that your choice of floor coverings is one of your most difficult decisions. You want something that will look well and perhaps even more important, wear well. Lawrence Rug and Linoleum, located at 278 South Broadway in Lawrence, next to the Registry of Motor Vehicles, features the latest in floor coverings of all kinds. Stop in any time and see Mr. Greska, Mr. Trask, or Mr. Gosselin, all floor covering specialists.

At the present time, the biggest news in the floor covering field is the Ozite Town 'N' Terrace carpet made of Vectra fiber, and you can see it now on display at Lawrence Rug and Linoleum. This is the original outdoor-indoor carpet that has proved successful in actual use. It is the world's first outdoor-indoor carpet to pass the test of time in actual commercial and home installations. It shrugs off rain, sleet and snow. It brings new warmth and beauty to hallway, stairs, kitchen, recreation room, bath, terraces, porches, bedrooms, almost anywhere you want to use it. And best of all, it is easy to install. Just roll it out in place and cut with a sharp knife or sissors. No binding of exposed edges is necessary. It resists spotting and staining. Inside, just vacuum it clean. Outside, hose it off and it dries quickly to its bright, original color. Specialists from Lawrence Rug and Linoleum will be happy to come to your home and give you estimate on any floor covering work you wish to have done. No job is too big or too small. Simply call them on the phone and samples will be brought to your home to help you in matching your present color scheme and decor, at absolutely no obligation to you. Before you decide on your next floor covering, whether you want wall-to-wall carpeting, a room-size rug, vinyl flooring, or the new Ozite Town 'N' Terrace Carpet of the amazing Vectra fiber, be sure to visit Lawrence Rug and Linoleum at 278 South Broadway in Lawrence, next to the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

State Senate Aide Is Legislative Candidate

JAMES P. HURRELL
James P. Hurrell of North Andover, a state senate aide, announced his candidacy for representative in the 12th Essex District recently at a meeting of friends and supporters.

Hurrell seeks the Democratic nomination in the primary, which will be held Sept. 13. The district includes Andover, North Andover, Ward One of Lawrence, and Precincts 1, 4, 5 and 6 of Methuen.

Born in Methuen, Hurrell has been a life-long resident of North Andover. He attended the North Andover public schools and Newman Preparatory School and Suffolk University in Boston. Hurrell was formerly employed as an assistant to a North Andover restaurant manager and is presently working as a senate aide for the Massachusetts State Senate. He is a member of local civic, business, and fraternal organizations.

The candidate makes his home with his father, Stanley J. Hurrell, his mother, Mrs. Winifred Miller Hurrell and his sister, Miss Claire M. Hurrell at 82 Saunders St., North Andover.

Punchard High Enthusiast Nurtures Name Controversy

Big Bazaar June 24-25

Andover's seventh annual Sidewalk Bazaar will be held June 24 and 25 from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. with nearly 50 civic and commercial organizations participating.

Chairman Alex Y. Milne reports there will be more "music, more food and more rides" than ever at the festive two-day event.

Friday's highlights will be: Fish Chowder Supper from 5 to 7 p.m. to be served on the Municipal Parking Lot; Strawberry Festival from 8:30 to 8:30 p.m. on the lawn of Free Christian Church, Elm street; Clan MacPherson Bagpipe band concert, 6 to 8 p.m. in front of the Bay State Merchants National bank; "The Vertigos" and "The Nocturnes", playing alternately in front of the R. J. Macartney Co. from 6:30 to 9 p.m. The former is a group of girl folk singers and the latter a "unique rock and roll group"; and from 4 to 6 p.m. there will be a string combo located at the Shoe Tree.

Saturday's events will include: Bicycle & Doll parade, lining up at 10:45 a.m. on Punchard Avenue and marching at 11 a.m.; the "What Fours" playing from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the corner of Chestnut and Main Streets; a square dance from 2 to 4 p.m.; at 4 p.m. a demonstration by Police Officer Donald Howard and the Andover K-9 Corps in front of Town Hall; an afternoon antique car display.

NO MENU

School lunch will be served on the final two full days of the 1966 session next week, but no advance menu is to be released. Public schools close Wednesday, June 22.

If the question of the legality of the 1957 change in name from Punchard to Andover High School is to be reviewed, the School Committee will have to initiate the process.

This is the consensus of the Board of Selectmen who received a letter Monday proposing that the old name for the town high school be restored. Pushing for a ruling from Town Council on the question is Winthrop Newman, 121 Elm St., author of a recent daily newspaper series about Punchard.

Newman states that Town Meeting established the first public high school in 1902 with an article which stipulated its name should be Punchard "until otherwise ordered." He contends the School Committee acted illegally, usurping the powers of Town Meeting, when in February of 1907, it adopted the present name.

The high school was named initially for Benjamin Hanover Punchard Esq., who left $50,000 in his will of 1850 for the construction and support of what became a free public high school.

Faith costs nothing to get, nothing to keep, but the person without it is lost.

One thousand alumni and wives were guests of the Academy Saturday day for the annual alumni luncheon. There they heard that the 1965-66 Alumni Fund had raised a total of $375,000, a sum exceeding all previous totals for annual giving at Andover.

Headmaster John M. Kemper paid tribute to Rev. A. Graham Baldwin who retires this year as school minister and chairman of the religion department after thirty-six years of service to P.A.
